We Remember...
HAMMERSMITH’S RADICAL PAST

This street has no less than 3 blue plaques, but there isn’t one on no 8, the home of May Morris, daughter of William and an important socialist in her own right.

May (pictured here with fellow socialists GB Shaw, HH Sparling, and Emery Walker, later edited her father’s Collected Works. Perhaps there is no plaque because she was a woman?

So here’s a memorial to redress the balance...
